General Comment

The Financial Accounting Standards Committee of the New York State Society of Certified Public Accountants has reviewed the Proposed SFAS 133 Implementation Issue C21 and is pleased to present the following comments.

While we do not object to the conclusions reached in the proposal, the Alternative View—provided by three of the Board's seven members—raises broader concerns about Statement 133. Based on the extensive guidance already in existence for Statement 133, the dissenting Board members' attempt to take a stand against “the proliferation of rules-based guidance” by permitting various ways to interpret Statement 133 is a mixed message. Further, the issue in question may not be clearly resolved by the Board's project on liabilities and equity for some time, if ever. We believe that the Board's deep division regarding implementation guidance on a pronouncement issued nearly a decade ago indicates the need to reconsider the guidance in Statement 133. In our opinion, the Board should seriously consider superseding Statement 133 with a simplified, principles-based pronouncement rather than continuing to amend the existing guidance in a piecemeal fashion. We are concerned about the ongoing need for implementation guidance on a pronouncement issued so long ago.
