We’re pleased to share the first NYSSCPA Career Resource Guide, with hiring information on top organizations, professional development and resources to help you achieve your full potential.

Now is a great time to be an accountant, and even better if you’re a CPA. Why? Because change brings opportunity. There are new technologies that create opportunities, from artificial intelligence to Big Data to cryptocurrencies. The tools of accounting are changing, and the NYSSCPA is working hard to keep our members up-to-date.

From the human capital side, the profession is changing, too. The baby boomer generation is retiring, creating openings for top positions. Firms are embracing diversity so that they can mirror the rich mosaic of their clients. Emerging industries need the expertise of accounting professionals in order to succeed. There are more opportunities than ever before to become a successful CPA in New York State.

And we here at the NYSSCPA will be there to cheer you on—every step of the way!

Many career paths are open to CPAs. The timeline below represents the time it takes to progress to certain positions at a public accounting firm. Remember that a good number of CPAs who begin at accounting firms move on to industry or other fields after only a few years. Source: AICPA

Only about 2 percent of all persons entering CPA firms will reach this level. An equity partner normally purchases equity in the firm and, therefore, shares in all profits.

A nonequity partner does not own equity in the firm but otherwise functions just like an equity partner in terms of serving clients, attending partner meetings and having access to the firm’s financial statements.
New York has 10 economic regions across the state. The firms and other companies in this Career Resource Guide are organized by region, so you can find opportunities where you are—and where you want to be.

Did You Know…
Luca Pacioli published the first book on double-entry bookkeeping in 1494.
A recent study has found that those who include a link to a comprehensive LinkedIn profile in their résumé are 71 percent more likely to be hired than those who don’t have a profile at all, according to Fortune.

The study, performed by résumé-writing service ResumeGo, involved creating and submitting 24,570 fictitious résumés to jobs listed on sites such as Glassdoor, ZipRecruiter and Indeed between last October and the beginning of March. The résumés were split into three groups: one with no LinkedIn profile at all, one with a bare-bones profile and one with a comprehensive profile. A profile was considered comprehensive if it had at least 1,000 characters in the summary, over 300 connections, and either paragraph or bullet-point descriptions of past jobs. A profile was considered to be bare bones if it had no more than 500 characters in the summary, no more than five connections and no descriptions of past jobs at all.

The ResumeGo researchers found that 13.5 percent of résumés with comprehensive profiles got a callback, versus 7.9 percent of those with no profiles, and 7.2 percent of those with bare-bones profiles.

What CPAs Can Do for a Business

More than Taxes
Proper tax compliance is important for every business. You can depend on CPAs for taxes and so much more.

Licensed
All accountants have training, but only CPAs are licensed. CPAs must pass a rigorous exam. But that’s not all. They keep current by taking continuing professional education classes. Some CPAs go on to earn qualifications in specialties such as personal financial planning, business valuation and forensic accounting.

Professional
As licensed professionals, CPAs are bound by a code of ethics. CPAs must comply with government regulations, avoid conflicts of interest and keep confidential information, well, confidential.

Strategic
If you’re starting a business, a CPA can advise you if it’s in your best interest to rent or buy equipment, hire staff, or even change locations. As your business expands, the accounting, financial and tax issues become more complicated. A CPA can help.

Connected
Many CPAs are members of the New York State Society of CPAs, the first state accounting association. Membership is a mark of commitment to the profession.

Learn More at nysscpa.org
CPAs use their accounting superpowers in a wide range of settings to be good and do good. As a CPA, maybe you're in a firm. Maybe you're in a nonprofit. Maybe you're chasing crooks. It all depends…

Meet some of our CPA superstars.

Rumbi Bwerinofa-Petrozzello, CPA/CFF, CFE. Senior Director at Seramount and NYSSCPA President

As president of the Society, Rumbi is a leader among CPAs. She put her technical expertise in forensics to work as principal of Rock Consulting. Now, she is leading the DEI (Diversity, Equity and Inclusion) charge as a senior director at Seramount, a strategic professional services firm.

Jason Camporese, CPA. CFO at Scenic Hudson, Inc.

Nonprofits need the sharp analytical skills that CPAs like Jason deliver so they can do the most good with limited resources. Carefully managing the Scenic Hudson endowment means they can create and maintain beautiful parks. Jason’s advice for serving a nonprofit: “Get to know the ins and outs of the rules that govern nonprofits [and] find a nonprofit whose mission speaks to something that you’re passionate about.”

Michael R. Durant, CPA. Tax Senior, Prager Metis CPAs LLC

Michael joined the NYSSCPA as a student and got to be a familiar face at the Society, rising to chair of the NextGen Committee. As chair, he developed events to help new CPAs navigate challenges and achieve their goals. He says, “Belonging to the Society—and, particularly, its committees—is an excellent way to establish connections and improve your skills.” Michael keeps building skills daily as he works toward his JD, a nice complement to his CPA.

Paulina Rodriguez, CPA. IRS Criminal Investigation (IRS-CI) Supervisory Special Agent

Paulina is the kind of CPA who packs heat. She seasoned her auditing skills and business background with criminal investigation training to track down tax cheats, identity thieves, money launderers and other financial fraudsters who cost the rest of us taxpayers money. She thinks creatively about how to “get evidence to complete a case,” then uses those audit skills to follow the money. At the end of the day, the satisfaction comes from “serving the American public. You have a purpose.”

How to Get Your CPA License in New York

The New York State Education Department Office of the Professions licenses CPAs in our state. Here’s what you need to do to apply for your license.

1. Be of good moral character.
2. Be at least 21 years of age.
3. Meet education requirements by completing the 150 semester-hour education requirement at an accredited program.
4. Successfully complete the Uniform CPA Exam. The exam has four parts which must be completed during a rolling 18-month window. A passing score is 75. The AICPA prepares and grades the exam, which is administered in New York by CPA Examination Services, a division of NASBA.
5. Meet experience requirements with at least one-year of full time (or the part-time equivalent) providing accounting services or advice involving skills in accounting, attest, compilation, management advisory, financial advisory, tax or consulting services under the supervision of a licensed CPA in a U.S. jurisdiction or a public accountant in New York State.

Learn more at nysed.gov
Choice “A” is correct. Choice “B,” “C,” and “D” are incorrect because of the above explanation.

Generally, an exchange of property for property is a sale, and the transferor recognizes gain or loss on the difference between the FMV of the property received and the basis of the property transferred. However, an exchange qualifies as nontaxable if:

- the transferor exchanges cash or property solely for stock, and
- the transferor or transferor group is in control (ie, owns at least 80%) of the corporation after the exchange.

The “solely for stock” requirement provides nonrecognition because the transferor has continued investing in the transferred property as a shareholder. However, a transferor that also receives “boot” (ie, cash or property other than transferee stock) in effect partially sells the property and therefore must recognize in income the lesser of any realized gain or the FMV of boot received.
